Dear John:

STATINTL

For about one month now we have been trying to make an appointment with [REDACTED] in order to straighten out some points with regard to the problems we are working on for you. This appointment has been cancelled several times. We feel quite strongly that if we are to complete our tasks on schedule that we need technical guidance from you or your people.

STATINTL

You will also remember that I wanted to give you a briefing on the present stage of this project and to determine, if possible, what our plans for future activities should be. I realize that you have discussed some of these points with [REDACTED] during your visit out there this week. However, I still think it would be advisable for us to get together.

I will call early next week in the hope of getting an appointment in the very near future.

STATINTL

Sincerely yours,

STATINTL
